

6 Weird Skin Care Products that Actually Work

Esquire

June 16, 2015

Why, yes, there are plenty of perfectly normal, non-serial-killer men who care about the latest in dermatological innovations. Men's skin care is one of the largest growth areas in the grooming market. But in a bull market, there's always a lot of bull. The Esquire maintenance team consulted three dermatologists and performed our own tests to determine which are worth trying.

With thanks to Dr. Paul Jarrod Frank, Dr. Whitney Bowe, and Dr. Jessica Krant. Rodney Cutler is an Ironman triathlete and the owner of Cutler salons in New York City.